DETAILED ACTION

1. The finality of the last office action is withdrawn and superceded by the present office action.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 45 is objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 45, "systemcomprises" should be separated. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hinkel (US 6192985)

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application.

Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Hinkel teaches a method of fracturing utilizing an encapsulated breaker, which utilizes the rupture of the encapsulating material (column 7, lines 24-47). Claim 11 specifically teaches the use of a proppant carrying matrix and an encapsulated breaker, wherein the specification at column 8, lines 55-60 defines such matrix as comprising a viscoelastic surfactant.

5. Claims 2, 9, 13, 14, 33, 42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Qu et al (6435277)

The applied reference has a common inventor and assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Qu teaches a method of fracturing which comprises using a fluid comprising a viscoelastic surfactant in conjunction with an amine, such as dodecyl amine (see example 25). In the example the fluid is heated, which is what would happen upon placing the fluid downhole into the formation. Depending upon surface temperature conditions, melting and slow dissolution of the amine would take place.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Hinkel (6192985).

The applied reference has a common assignee with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art only under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) might be overcome by: (1) a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not an invention "by another"; (2) a showing of a date of invention for the claimed subject matter of the application which corresponds to subject matter disclosed but not claimed in the reference, prior to the effective U.S. filing date of the reference under 37 CFR 1.131; or (3) an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.130 stating that the application and reference are currently owned by the same party and that the inventor named in the application is the prior inventor under 35 U.S.C. 104, together with a terminal disclaimer in accordance with 37 CFR 1.321(c). For applications filed on or after November 29, 1999, this rejection might also be overcome by showing that the subject matter of the reference and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person. See MPEP § 706.02(I)(1) and § 706.02(I)(2). Hinkel teaches a method of fracturing utilizing an encapsulated breaker, which utilizes the rupture of the encapsulating material (column 7, lines 24-47). The claims specifically teach the use of a proppant carrying matrix and an encapsulated breaker, wherein the specification at column 8, lines 55-60 defines such matrix as comprising a viscoelastic surfactant. Hinkel teaches the use of persulfates as breakers (column 7, lines 28-31), but does not specifically teach ammonium persulfate. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to utilize ammonium persulfate in the invention of Hinkel, given the general teaching of Hinkel that persulfate breakers are useful in the fracturing method.

Double Patenting

8. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

9. Claim 2 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 7-15 of U.S. Patent No. 6192985.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because although the claims of US 6192985 differ by teaching the use of more than one breaker, the method therein uses an encapsulated breaker, wherein the encapsulating coating would rupture rendering the claim 2 of the present application obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, in view of the proppant carrying matrix being defined as a viscoelastic surfactant containing fluid.

10. Claims 4 and 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

11. Claims 7, 12, 15, 19, 20, 22, 23, 29, 34, 35, 37, 43 and 48 are allowable over the art of record.

12. Applicants amendments have been noted, and overcome the prior rejections. Further consideration of the prior art resulted in the new rejections presented in this office action.
